Beginners are working on perfecting their sections on Au Clair de la Lune, and making sure they are changing chords with the correct timing on Try Everything. I would still like them to be practicing their F scale up the neck as well, particularly those third-graders who will be continuing in the fall.

Intermediate students will be deciding this week their final selections for the spring program. They should continue to review Au Clair de la Lune in both French and English. We will also be working on our introductions and adding sparkle notes and different strums to How Far I'll Go.

As always, thank you for encouraging your students to practice!
