Music

January 23 - January 27

Ms. May - Grades 3 & 4

Aloha!

This week Beginners will be revisiting the song Rocky Mountain and continue to review their C scale. We will also continue working on our C, F, and G chords, as well as the top and bottom sections of Wiegenlied. If they do well on Rocky Mountain on Monday, I may give them a fun song from Trolls or Zootopia to strum and sing over the weekend.

Intermediate students are charging ahead with their F scale, working on playing it in two different positions up the neck. They have been doing a great job with Wiegenlied and we may begin to move on to harder chords this week. As part of their homework I would like them to listen to Malie's Song, by Keali'i Reichel. This is a beautiful Hawai'ian song that we will be working on later in the semester, but the more familiarity they have with it, the better. It is available to listen to on YouTube for free, as well as Spotify, Pandora, and Apple Music, if you subscribe to those.

Both groups should continue working on their hammer-on and pull-off drills, as these build finger strength over many months.

Mr. Eli Rolfe - Band

January 23 - January 27

It's time to move on from Christmas music and start preparing for the spring concert. I've selected a little bit harder music for the advanced band, so it will be essential that the students practice. I'm looking forward to this semester.
